

Cold Brook-Phoenixia Route and Detour Are Being Worked Together

Traffic Routed by Way of Woodstock-Willow Road Finds That Detour Is Now Undergoing Extensive Repairs

COMPLAINTS MADE

Users of Road Object to Work on Detour While It Is Being Used as Main Route

People compelled to travel the highway between Kingston and Phoenixia have another difficulty to face now. While the Cold Brook-Phoenixia route is being resurfaced by the state that route between Cold Brook and Mt. Tremper is closed to through traffic during the day and the detour is being diverted at West Hurley over the Woodstock-Willow road to the Mt. Tremper corner. Flagmen stationed at the junction of the Ashokan Boulevard and the Woodstock road route through traffic over that route. A short distance from the corner the traveler is met with a danger sign cautioning traffic to proceed slowly as the road is under repairs. While the Woodstock-West Hurley road, a narrow macadam route, is bearing all of the mountain traffic which under normal conditions would follow the Ashokan boulevard men have been placed at work widening the road and repairing shoulders with the result that the heavy traffic is delayed.

At Wrong Time. Complaints have been made that while the road undoubtedly needs repairs, the selection of the present time to make such repairs while the road is being used as a detour shows lack of judgment on the part of officials in charge.

Work on the resurfacing of the Phoenixia-Cold Brook route is progressing and this work will be completed shortly. The work has reached a point near the C. C. C. camp and but little more remains to be done. The resurfacing job is done directly over the old pavement. A coarse layer of stone is applied and tarred and rolled. The effect is to give a road which does not become slippery in wet weather. However, the job where completed is rough and has a "wash-board" surface which is very noticeable to automobile traffic.

Many local people rather than take the detour by way of Woodstock are using the dirt road which runs west of the Esopus from the Ashokan Boulevard to Cold Brook station and across the iron bridge to join the main highway there. The resurfacing job is now being carried on below this point between the bridge and the boulevard.

Business Drops Off. A number of summer business places along the route where operations are being carried on are still remaining closed because of the lack of traffic which has been diverted by the carrying on of operations during the summer boarding season instead of doing the work before or after the close of the short summer boarding season in the mountains. A huge loss of business is reported by many boarding houses and business places.

It was only through the efforts of Senator Wicks, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway and a committee of residents along the route that the work was suspended during the week-end when traffic becomes exceptionally heavy. Their efforts resulted in the opening of the road on Saturdays and Sundays, and the elimination of detours on those days.

It was understood that complications and difficulties were found in reaching a truly representative section of delegates in various lands.

HOME BUREAU PICNIC AT FORSYTH PARK

Tomorrow, August 23, is the day for the Annual Farm and Home Bureau Association Picnic at Forsyth Park, Kingston. This is the day the city folks, as well as the country folks, come out to enjoy an outing, a day of fun and friendly visiting. This year an extra large crowd is expected. Everybody is invited to join the crowd, and forget business matters for a few hours.

The Home Bureau and the Holstein Club will serve lunch and refreshments of all kinds. Real home cats at the Home Bureau booth, while the Holstein Club, in charge of Jesse Devo of New Paltz and Harry A. Beatty of Kingston, will fill your glass with milk drinks, and your plate with milk cream. We all know the good "hot dogs" that Millard Davis always serves. Most folks will bring a picnic lunch but lots of food will be available.

NRATo Attempt Move To Shorten The World Labor Hours at Parley

General World Recovery Is Reason Given for Effort Which Will Crystallize at Conference at Geneva in 1935.

Washington, August 22 (AP).—The administration is seeking a way to have the world follow the United States in cutting working hours.

The way may be found, officials hope, in the international labor organization, which the United States joined this week.

This country's delegation to the next international labor conference, to be held next summer in Geneva, doubtless will take the lead in a movement for shorter hours.

World recovery as an essential to a complete comeback in this country has been discussed more than once by the administration. Shorter hours in the United States under NRA codes mean, generally, increased production costs. Any change in a nation's costs has a vital effect on its foreign trade. Hence, the administration's interest in hours abroad.

The United States representatives will find a shorter-hours movement already well underway in Geneva.

Fifteen years ago, the international organization adopted a convention calling for a maximum week of 48 hours. By the first of this year, 19 countries had ratified it. England and Germany, two leading industrial nations, were not among them.

A still greater reduction was proposed at the 1933 conference. Although no convention was completed at the 1934 session, the conference adopted a resolution saying reduction of working hours "considered either as a palliative of unemployment or as a method of enabling the workers to share in the benefits of technical progress" was one of the "principal tasks of the organization."

It then voted to ask the international labor office to collect more data on the subject, and the organization's governing body to put it on the program for the 1935 conference.

A very interesting document, written on sheepskin, bearing date of November 9, 1685, has been discovered among the old records on file in the county clerk's office. It is a deed or grant given by Thomas Dongan, lieutenant governor and vice admiral of New York under King James the second. The document was found to be in good condition and was transcribed by Paul E. Killion, graphologist and restorer of ancient manuscripts, who has been doing restoration work on old documents in the office under the direction of County Clerk James Simpson. The text of the grant is most interesting. It conveys to Waldron Dumont some 259 acres of land in Kingston and the payment mentioned in the grant is the annual payment of two and a half of "good winter merchantable wheat on every twenty-fifth day of March at Kingstorne."

Restoring Records. Recently County Clerk James Simpson called attention of the board of supervisors to the condition of certain documents and record books in the office. He asked that some expert be employed to preserve these ancient records which age had begun to dim. Mr. Killion, an expert in this work, was engaged and has completed the work of preserving and restoring many of the ancient documents which are on file in the office. It was while this work was going on that the Dongan patent record was unearthed. Kept in a case during the many years it has been on record the ancient sheepskin was found to be in good condition although age had dimmed the writing in places. Following the restoration of the document a photostatic copy was made and the text of the document was transcribed, together with an explanation of the elaborate seal which the document bore. This document bears the caption, "Great seal of the Province of New York 1670-1673-1674-1687."

The original seal which was attached to the patent appears to have been lost but while restoring the papers Mr. Killion searched other authentic documents and has located in the Documentary History of New York, printed in 1854, an engraving of the Great Seal of the Province of New York which was used on all official documents from 1670 to 1687, except for the brief period that the Dutch recaptured and held New York. There is no question about the accuracy of the seal as it has been proved by a comparison with the seal attached to the East Hampton-Dongan patent which is dated December 9, 1686 or 18 days earlier than Brookhaven's. Unfortunately the seal that was attached to the South Hampton-Dongan patent has also been lost. However the seal on the South Hampton-Andros patent dated November 1, 1676, is the same.

Explains Seal. Mr. Killion gives the following explanation of the seal: "While the wax was still warm, a piece of diamond shaped paper called a wafer, was placed over it and the impression of the stamp was made on it. A small piece of the wafer was found in the bag in which the patent was kept for many years. The wafer on the South Hampton-Andros patent is intact."

The motto which is a part of the seal is explained in the following language by Mr. Killion: "The Motto, 'honi soit qui mal y pense,' is old French and is the motto of the Order of the Garter. It may be translated as, 'Evil to Him Who so Thinks.' The legend, 'Sigilli Province Novi Eborac' is Latin, partly abbreviated, and meaning Seal of the Province of New York. The coat of arms is that of Great Britain during the Reigns of the Stuart Kings. In the first and fourth quarters are the three lions of England and the three fleurs de lis of France quartered and separated by the Cross of St. George, the lion rampant of Scotland is in the second quarter and the Harp of Ireland in the third. The crest above the shield is the coronet of the Duke of York, composed of crosses and fleur de lis, which was authorized to use by warrant dated February 2, 1652."

Text of Grant. The text of the "Thomas Dongan Patent to Waldron Dumont given at Fort James, New York, November 9, 1685," as transcribed by Mr. Killion is as follows: "Thomas Dongan, Lieut. Governor and Vice Admiral of New York &c Under his Majesty James the second by the grace of god King of England Scotland France and Ireland Defender of the Faith Supreme Lord and Proprietor of the Colonies and Provinces in America hath by his Letters under the Great Seal of the Province of New York bearing date the twenty-seventh day of May in the twenty-first year of his Majesty's Reine anno Domo 1685 given and granted unto the widow of Jacob Hap a certain Parcel of Land upon the beach lying and being at the Esopus to the west of Evert Peils to the South of the Creeke or Kill

Because of Throgs Plain Ritual Will Be Read at His Beloved Estate Near Carrollton

Carrollton, Ill., August 22 (AP).—Henry T. Rainey came back to his "home folks" today and the President of the United States mourned with 30,000 citizens at his bier.

Through streets draped with mourning and past half-staffed flags, the funeral cortege from St. Louis wended its way slowly to the little court house where the body lay in state. All the business houses on the court house square were closed and the 2,280 residents of this little city were present almost en masse to pay their last respects to "Henry T."

Rainey's body will be "taken home" this afternoon. His beloved Walnut Hill estate will echo to the sonorous chant of the requiem from the front porch of the farm house, a mile east of here, the short and simple Episcopal ritual will be read by John Chandler White, Episcopal Bishop of Springfield.

The late speaker will be buried in the Carrollton Cemetery beside the graves of his father and mother. The funeral services will be held at the farm home because there is no place in the city big enough to handle the throng expected. A host of both state and national politicians found their way here for the ceremonies.

President Roosevelt came from Washington on a special train. Gov. Henry Horner, Senator William H. Dieterich and Chief Justice Norman L. Jones of the Illinois Supreme court will meet the President and escort him to the Rainey home. Jones was once a law partner with Rainey.

It was one of fate's ironies, that the funeral services for the late speaker should be held on a day, set far in advance, for a "Rainey homecoming."

Only two automobiles, those of President Roosevelt and Gov. Horner, will be allowed on the grounds during the services.

President Is Grave.

En Route with President Roosevelt, Aug. 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt rode in his special train across the midwest today to pay the last tribute to the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey in the little farm community of Carrollton, Illinois.

The smile that usually is on the face of the President was absent as he traveled to the funeral of his close friend and strong supporter. He was accompanied only by his immediate assistants. If his thoughts were on the future leadership of the next house, he did not disclose it. He has declared his faith in congress and the question of a speaker will be decided later.

The White House had taken care to keep the route of the train a secret, but people were on hand at every stop to greet the President. His whole day was devoted to the funeral of the man who handled the gavel in the first session of the administration. Business was put aside for the time.

Nabinger Denies Giving Mrs. Coo Help in Picking Spot for Alleged Murder

Attorney for Defense Byard and State Witness Have Spirited Exchange Today as Trial Progresses

HANOVER REMARKS

Woman Quotes Words Allegedly Spoken by Nabinger to Mrs. Coo About the Alleged Murder

Cooperstown, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP).—Pale-faced Harry Nabinger, star boarder at Eva Coo's place, was put through a grueling cross examination today by James Byard, Jr., counsel for Mrs. Coo, in her trial for the murder of Harry Wright.

In a spirited exchange, Nabinger, one of the state's chief witnesses, denied that he went up Crumhorn mountain with Eva Coo last Memorial Day to pick out a spot where Wright could be slain.

"Don't you know you're as guilty of the murder as anyone?" demanded Byard.

"No, sir, I'm trying to tell the truth so far as I know," Nabinger replied.

Byard said: "Don't you know that Eva Coo, as she sits there, is innocent of this murder?"

"Now, I object to that," interrupted District Attorney Donald H. Grant. "That's up to the jury."

"Well, if you object, I won't press the question," Byard said.

Byard read from what he said was the testimony of Edna Hanover, another state's witness, at the inquest. He quoted her as saying Nabinger had remarked to Eva Coo:

"You think you know so much about it (the murder). I saw him five minutes before he was killed, and he wasn't killed where he was found."

"I don't think I said that," Nabinger said.

Byard also quoted Edna Hanover as having said Nabinger blamed "somebody by the name of Pouse" for the murder of Mrs. Coo's handyman.

Police Get Clues Which Reveal Craft from Rowboats to Cruisers by Same Name

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 22 (AP).—Feverishly following a maze of will-o'-the-wisp leads, police today found no tangible clues to the whereabouts of the bandits who, working with the precision of a battle chess, executed the $427,000 holdup of an armored truck.

Every path authorities took in their gigantic search brought them into blind alleys.

The hunt for the desperadoes was almost entirely marine. Swift police launches, carrying heavily-armed crews of detectives, roared through the bay on secret missions.

A flurry of excitement caused by the finding near Floyd Bennett Airport of a cabin cruiser bearing the name "Popeye" quickly subsided.

Witnesses said that one of the boats into which two of the bandits leaped at Bay 35th street shortly after the holdup yesterday was named "Popeye."

Not Right "Popeye". Charles Zaun, of Brooklyn, owner of the "Popeye" found today told police that his boat, a 30-foot cabin cruiser, painted white with brown trimmings, was at Farm's yacht basin during the holdup.

He said he had purchased the "Popeye" last Sunday, and that yesterday forenoon he had a friend, Charles Colberg, take it from its dock at the foot of Bay 14th street to the yacht basin.

The "Popeye" is motor-powered, and is 40 years old. It carries license number "61085".

Police also investigated another "Popeye" at the foot of Kimball street, Brooklyn. It was a 12-foot rowboat.

Shortly before noon, a police launch swung up to the foot of Bay 25th street, was boarded by a crew of detectives and speeded out into New York Bay for an unannounced destination.

Police disclosed that last Monday a patrolman had gone to the foot of DuPont street in Brooklyn where a large crowd was reported gathered around a cabin cruiser bearing the name "Popeye".

Labor Storm Clouds Four Ulster Co. Men Lift at Minneapolis, but Chicago Sky Is Dark

(By The Associated Press)

The military returned Minneapolis to the city today—the truck drivers' strike was over.

Agreement of the truck owners to take back strikers without discrimination paved the way for acceptance of peace plans advanced by Federal negotiators. Shouting drivers last night announced the union's almost unanimous vote to return to work.

Governor Floyd B. Olson said military rule would be revoked, prisoners of the military courts pardoned. National Guardsmen withdrawn. Four deaths resulted from the five-week strike.

Settlement of the garment workers' strike in Boston also was effected. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America announced several hundred strikers would return to their shops late today.

The strike outlook was darker in Chicago, where leaders of the week-old bus drivers' strike denied they had agreed to arbitrate and other transportation workers awaited authorization for a sympathy walkout. "No progress," reported mediators seeking to avert a transportation tie-up.

Twenty-nine murder warrants are being served by Portland (Ore.) police as a result of the fatal strike battle there and West Virginia State Police sought to round up participants in the fight at the Goodwill Mine, where one man was slain. Union and non-union men were said to have clashed.

Other strikes, including that of Aluminum Company of America employees and the impending nationwide walkout of textile workers, were in the conference stage.

Yankees and Giants Both Lose; Tigers Now Lead by 5½ Games

By The Associated Press.

The Yankees and the Giants both lost yesterday, but the Tigers, who had been leading the National League by a 5½ game margin, now lead by 5½ games.

The Yankees lost to the Cardinals, 4 to 3, in a game that was a real slugfest. The Yankees had a lead in the first inning, but the Cardinals came back in the second and third innings. The Yankees' pitcher, Lefty Grove, was hit for three runs in the third inning. The Cardinals' pitcher, Dizzy Dean, was hit for three runs in the third inning.

The Giants lost to the Dodgers, 4 to 3, in a game that was a real slugfest. The Giants had a lead in the first inning, but the Dodgers came back in the second and third innings. The Giants' pitcher, Tim Lincecum, was hit for three runs in the third inning. The Dodgers' pitcher, Fred Fitzsimmons, was hit for three runs in the third inning.

The Tigers won from the Indians, 4 to 3, in a game that was a real slugfest. The Tigers had a lead in the first inning, but the Indians came back in the second and third innings. The Tigers' pitcher, Lou Gehrig, was hit for three runs in the third inning. The Indians' pitcher, Phil Collins, was hit for three runs in the third inning.

The third-place Cleveland Indians improved their position by putting on a nine-run rally in the ninth at the expense of the Athletics and winning, 12 to 11. Three Philadelphia pitchers handed out six walks in that frame and the Indians bunched four hits with these and an error for their victory. Chicago and Washington had an open date.

The third-place Cardinals regressed the only important National League game when they defeated the Braves 6 to 2 behind Tex Carleton's seven hit hurling. While they won both, the Giants and the Cubs suffered unexpected setbacks. The league leaders called upon Fred Fitzsimmons, who had only two days' rest after Saturday's two-hit shutout of the Reds and Cincinnati belted him out in the fifth, winning 4-3.

The Phillies ended a seven game losing streak with a 6-1 triumph over the Cubs when Fidgety Phil Collins turned in a six-hit hurling job.

The Dodgers continued their domination over the Pirates by slamming Larry French and Hal Smith for nine runs in six innings and winning the series final 9 to 5. It was their 12th victory in 18 games against Pittsburgh.

Aces of Syracuse Trots, Aug. 28-Sept. 6

BOASTING the first two weeks Grand Circuit card ever held in New York, the State Fairgrounds at Syracuse will soon echo to the fastest trotters and pacers of the world as they strut their stuff from Aug. 28-Sept. 6 during the week before and the week of the New York State Fair. Rich stakes for harness speedsters of every class are luring all the big time stables and teams to Syracuse for eight days of record-smashing footwork.

Lord Jim, 2:02½, upper right, Hambletonian winner, who will try to repeat that victory in the Western Horseman three-year-old trot on Labor Day, Sept. 3; Vansandt, 2:01, upper left, great stallion who will battle Brown Berry, 2:01, left center, and Calumet Crusader, 2:01½, in a special $2,500 match race Aug. 29, as well as in the famous Empire State Sept. 4; Vic Fleming, well-known Syracuse reinsman, right center, who will pilot Calumet Evelyn, 2:02½, in the Western Horseman three-year-old pace Sept. 4; H. M. "Doc" Parshall, lower left, who will bring his speedy stable to Syracuse and drive most of his horses as the premiere pilot of the sport; Logan Scott, 2:00¾, lower right, who will wiggle in the speedy, free-for-all pace Sept. 3.

Cummings Will Race At N. Y. State Fair

Syracuse, Aug. 22.—"Wild Bill" Cummings, colorful winner of the Indianapolis Grand Prize and winner here last year, today signed to drive in the 100-mile national championship automobile race at the state fair grounds track on Saturday, September 8.

The dazzling speed ace, who was reared close to the Indianapolis speedway, the world's automobile racing shrine, is now leading in the fight for the national championship by reason of his record-breaking victory in the Hoosier classic.

His big goal—the ambition of all drivers—is to win the national title. To be certain of the crown he must place high in the 100-mile race here, for it is possible for others to wrest the speed mantle away from him.

Back in 1932, it will be recalled, Fred Frame rode his way to victory at Indianapolis, but the Pacific coast driver failed to win the championship. Bob Carey, who trailed him across the finish line in the Indianapolis 500-miler, grabbed it by placing high in subsequent title events.

This year Mauri Rose, who placed second behind "Wild Bill" at Indianapolis has the same chance of depriving the Grand Prize winner of the titular laurels. And Rose has plenty of incentive to extend himself to the limit.

Last year he finished behind Cummings here and in this year's running at Indianapolis he finished close behind "Wild Bill," so close and under such circumstances that he and the owner of his car, Leon Duray, himself a driver of top rank, protested the victory.

The protest grew out of an accident, which necessitated the use of the caution flag, which requires all drivers to maintain their place. It was Rose's contention that Cummings did not maintain his place but continued to push his car, whereas he held his position. As a result, Rose claimed, Cummings gained on him enough to cross the finish line first.

The protest was thrown out by the officials of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association after a week of deliberation, during which the purses were held up. But the decision still irks Rose and Duray, and the pair are intent on taking "Wild Bill" down a peg or two here.

Cummings is regarded as one of the most colorful drivers of all times. He graduated from the ranks of an humble taxi driver into the best driver of the day, spurred on by the many performances he saw at the Indianapolis speedway near his home.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

Salt Water History.

Apparently more inlanders as well as islanders and sea coast sportsmen are taking deeper interest in this international yachting and sailing.

As Mr. Kipling reports—"An", out at sea, he'd the dock lights as An met my mate—the wind that tramps the world."

It all started 82 summers ago when Commodore Stevens presented to the New York Yacht Club an already ancient and not particularly interesting trophy which he had picked up by sailing around the Isle of Wight in a shorter time than a dozen British yachtsmen could make the distance.

For some reason, the mug that Stevens took out of his luggage and presented to the N. Y. Y. C. as America's Cup began immediately to glow English sportsmen $1,500,000 every time they tried to lift it out of the groove it had worn in the N. Y. Y. C.'s very best oak table.

The first real challenger crossed the Atlantic under her own sail, one of the cup rules, in July, 1870, in the Cambria, beat of the million-dollar yacht which had competed in British waters earlier that summer. The America, Stevens's boat, was pretty old by this time and finished fourth behind the Cambria. But a young upstart called the Magic was first by 35 minutes, so the Cambria went home her crew swearing to come back and lift the blooming cup.

Next year the Livonia not Cambria boasted the Union Jack, B. Sappho, flying the Yankee flag, beat her around the last buoy, after the Cambria had been disabled in the first of three races. Five years later the Madeleine beat Countess of Dufferin; in 1881 Mischief trounced Atlanta; in 1885 Puritan beat Genesta; in 1886 Mayflower won from Galatea and in 1887 Volunteer whisked by Thistle. Britain had yet to win the America's Cup. British pride was smarting with a sort of accumulative glow.

The Valkyrie Reports.

Well, the tars of England were discouraged to put it mildly. But along came the Earl of Dunraven with his boat Valkyrie and hope sprang again in the salty British breast. The Valkyrie came within an ounce of beating the Vigilant in 1893 and when she crossed in 1895 to race the Defender, proud product of the late Charles Oliver Iselin's seamanship and constructive skill, the bets, as Mr. Royle would say, were easy.

The Valkyrie won the first race on September 8, 1895, by 8 minutes and 20 seconds. That was front page news in Great Britain. On September 10 the British boat's boom raked the Defender's deck as the two yachts jockeyed for starting positions, and the Iselin craft immediately hoisted her protest flag.

Even with this handicap (for they say that a protest flag holds back a full rigged cup defender 1-10th of one knot an hour) the Defender lost by only 47 seconds. Of course a protest was filed. The cup committee decided to race it all over again; but they had not figured on a race in which there was only one participant, for by nightfall the Earl of Dunraven was Britain-bound with a huff and not America's Cup in his hold.

That was the last time the Royal Yacht Club raced until in October, 1933, they challenged on behalf of Thomas O. M. Sopwith. Meanwhile British tradition as challenger of the seas was kept glowing by the late and great Sir Thomas Lipton, probably the best sportsman and most consistent loser that ever felt salt spray in his face or hauled down an air-conditioned spinnaker.

Mr. Lipton's Shamrock boats came over here in 1899, 1901, 1903, 1920 and 1930. He never won the old mug, but his Shamrock IV took the first two races in 1920 and was beaten only by the Resolute's stirring comeback of three victories in a row. For that matter Shamrock II flirled to Columbia in 1901 by 36 seconds in a 4 hour and 31 minute race.

The $1,000,000,000 Show.

Now to get back to expenses. Sails average $5,500 apiece, with the mainsails costing a great deal more and the funny little ones on top not a great deal less. Each racer buys between 35 and 50 sails when the season begins. By racing time in the autumn he has to order seconds and thirds. Remember that is just for sails.

Well, the average Class J sloop (which is the technical size and designation of cup defenders and challengers) can be built for something around $145,000 if you pinch and scrape. Then you have to buy at least three masts at $25,000; a brace of booms at $40,000; a crew at $100,000 (for cup racing is an all-year job); and several hundred G's, as Mr. Robinson might say, for the dockage, wharfage, cartage and auxiliary boats which are necessary to the welfare of America's cuppers.

That totals $999,997.50. If you add a twenty-five word cable to Mrs. Sopwith at 10c a word (twenty-six if he incloses his love) it makes a cool million dollars for defender and challenger alike. There are some healthy wagers on the side, what is more. The boys who bet don't say much about it. They let their money speak for itself.

One thing more, when September 15 rolls around (and if you think the summer hasn't flown just look at a calendar), it will be apparent that Mr. Sopwith's challenge is no empty one. The Endeavor is a speedy, weather welcome boat built on American racing lines. The Shamrocks were built on Lipton's lines which were always about ten years behind the trend of amateur water babies who will fight it out on that line if it takes all summer. They aren't union men. If earnestness will bring back the old mug to England the Sopwith tug has what it takes.

Van Wie Leads West Golfers by 7 Strokes

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—It looked as though it would take a lot of exceptional shooting in the final round today to beat Virginia Van Wie out of the women's Western Golf Association 72-hole medal play derby trophy.

After an ordinary first round Monday, the 1932 and 1933 national champion came back yesterday over the Beverly Country Club course, to assume a seven stroke lead over Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City. Miss Van Wie added rounds of 72-82 to her 83 of Monday, for a 241 total for 54 holes. Mrs. Hill had a 82-89 yesterday for 248.

Los Angeles—Oscar Rankin, 181. Los Angeles, outpointed Gorilla Jones, 160½. Akron, Ohio (10): Leroy Haines, 194. Los Angeles, outpointed Tony Cancela, 194. Tampa, Fla. (10).

WHOLESALE

Benefit Concert of Twofold Interest

The big concert to be given for the benefit of the Benedictine Hospital on the evening of Wednesday, September 1, is of twofold interest as well as profound interest to the entire community and vicinity.

That Kingston is blessed with such a hospital, the doors of which are open to the needy, who are ministered to by such an able staff of physicians and surgeons is a matter deeply appreciated in the community.

Physical disability whether from disease or accident is the one and only passport to this hospital's service. While this puts the patients upon their mettle to make good their financial responsibilities to the hospital, in many instances—and the number has been increasing all too rapidly these past two or three years—there is no money with which to pay their bills for some time to come after recovery. This means that the hospital carries the financial burden a bit on its own.

One of the most significant services rendered is that of providing adequate care for maternity cases at a minimum cost to the patients. This has resulted in the saving of the lives of many mothers and infants, and has brought great mental relief to expectant mothers who have felt that there was a place and the best of care awaiting them and their expected babies at the Benedictine Hospital.

There are also many free clinics highly commended by the New York State Department of Health and the College of Surgeons.

Not only do all patients find excellent medical and surgical care but sympathy and efficient service which go far toward a quick recovery.

A Sophisticated

Daytime Frock

This Fall will find us garbed in dull finished crepes of the satin-back variety, or in cantons, armures and matalasses cut with straight, matter-of-fact lines in the dress, and in the trimming sophisticated facings of metallic brocade, novelty fabrics, or the reverse satin-side of the crepe used in the dress.

The simplicity that is so vitally important in the matter of everyday clothes is definitely present in the sophisticated treatment of the dress in the sketch. An arrangement of interesting revers, faced with a fabric of rich color and weave are the decor of this dress, which, in itself, would be a simple affair, indeed, without the distinguishing beauty of the metallic brocade used for the trimming. Sophisticated clothes, this year, mean good style lines (correctly and smartly cut) and fine fabrics, rich in quality and becoming in color.

It seems more important than ever in these hectic days, when mighty business is intersticed with moments of pleasure at a smart luncheon place, to choose frocks that conform to the above requirements. One might wear this dress to a luncheon, an afternoon bridge party, or a matinee. Styles of this type fit into the business woman's wardrobe, too. They can be put on in the morning and worn until it is time to dress for dinner (if you happen to be one of those who do dress).

A new type of soft pliable wool is on the market. It has a dull spongy surface, and is as popular, with smart people, for sophisticated frocks, as silk. Jersey, too, is staging a come-back, the latest edition is shot with metal threads that reflect the light and glow with mystery. For a frock of this particular type it would be especially attractive with the revers made of lame.
